Tithing

Giving the tithe allows us to express our thanksgiving for the privilege of earning wages, and also graphically demonstrates our understanding that we are not the owners of our resources, we are merely stewards of the money God has allowed us to earn.

The Anthem

Hallelujah
You have won the victory
Hallelujah
You have won it all for me

Death could not hold you down
You are the risen King
Seated in Majesty
You are the risen King

Healer

You hold my every moment.
You calm my raging seas.
You walk with me through fire,
And heal all my disease.
I trust in you, I trust in you.

I believe you're my healer
I believe you are all I need.
I believe you're my portion
I believe you're more than enough for me
Jesus you're all I need

Nothing is impossible for you
Nothing is impossible
Nothing is impossible for you
You hold my world in your hands

Break Every Chain

There is power in the name of Jesus (3x)

To break every chain, break every chain, break every chain.

To break every chain, break every chain, break every chain.

There's an army rising up(3x)

To break every chain, break every chain, break every chain.

To break every chain, break every chain, break every chain.

I hear the chains falling

Soul Survivor

It would be nice to think that Christians would be unaware of and shocked by such harmful practices. Unfortunately and ashamedly, though, the church is one of the most common environments for cliques. Certain ladies look down upon other women who are perceived to not be at their same social standing because of the way they dress. Member of the choir regard non-members as unworthy of their time. Men and women in leadership let the power go to their heads and don't want to interface with those they promised to shepherd and serve. Thank the Lord this isn't always the case, but you know what I mean if you've been in the church for very long!

Perhaps this tendency serves as one of the reasons so many Christians are attracted to clique formation. We like the safety of being with others like ourselves who won't threaten or intimidate us with their differences. As long as we're with other who think and act like we expect them to, we won't be surprised or required to change. If we keep the group homogenous, we can rest in the reputation of the group. Maybe it's human nature to crave this kind of consistency, but it's also incredibly dangerous.

This pattern which offers a false sense of security, is often transferred to the workplace, where cliques and groups can create damage dissension, resulting in a horrific atmosphere for workers. People are no longer perceived as individuals but as on this person's side or in that person's corner. Perhaps some of you all share George's beliefs about the way certain tasks should be completed. Maybe the marketing team thinks they're more indispensable than the accounting department. Suddenly every word or action has political and personal ramification. The workplace becomes a chessboard of pawns moving around for kings and queens. Some groups support this person today but not tomorrow. If a person isn't willing to jump on the group bandwagon, she is perceived as a threat and bad-mouthed. ...

Governor Corbett Announces Steps to Save Amtrak Service to Pittsburgh

Harrisburg – Governor Tom Corbett announced today that he has reached an agreement with Amtrak on a new funding plan that will maintain rail passenger service between Pittsburgh, Harrisburg and Philadelphia.

Under the revised agreement with Amtrak, Pennsylvania's contribution will be $3.8 million a year to maintain the service on the line known as the "Pennsylvanian," featuring one train a day in each direction between Harrisburg and Pittsburgh. The through service continues to and from Philadelphia and New York City.

"I applaud Amtrak for its willingness to work with my administration on a funding plan that makes sense for Pennsylvania in these difficult economic times and maintains this passenger rail service that provides important connections for many towns in western Pennsylvania," Corbett said.

The service, which the commonwealth restored in the early 1980s working with Amtrak, is subject to a new funding agreement that requires Amtrak to recover more costs than it did previously. Initial funding estimates for funding the "Pennsylvanian" totaled $6.5 million a year.

The new level falls within the capabilities of the Governor's transportation plan and means service west of Harrisburg, with stations in Lewistown, Huntingdon, Altoona, Johnstown, and Greensburg can be maintained.

"It is important that the state legislature act this spring to advance my transportation plan so we can meet this funding need," Corbett said.

"I am committed to finding sensible solutions that recognize the constraints we in government face, but at the same time provide needed services," Corbett said. "This new arrangement meets those criteria and I am happy that PennDOT and Amtrak were able to come to a revised agreement."
